Lemon Grove Presents Candidate for High School Trustee

Should Have Representation on Board

Lemon Grove has a candidate for Grossmont Union High School District Trustee.

Mrs. Marian Batchelder, 6449 Mt. Vernon, filed for a place on the board of trustees, subject to the will of the people of the district, and an intensive campaign is going to be conducted by a local group in an effort to get her elected.

Mrs. Batchelder has been a resident of Lemon Grove for 11 years, and has four children in the public schools, including the high school.

She has been in public life a considerable portion of the time since coming to Lemon Grove, and has been active in club and civic work here.

She has also served in the National Labor Relations Board of office, and on surveys conducted by national business concerns.

Mrs. Batchelder comes from a family familiar with the workings of school boards and the duties of its members, her mother having served for many years as a board member in Tustin.

Both of the other candidates for high school district trustee are residents of the La Mesa elementary school district. Lee Freeman is city clerk of La Mesa and Chas. Irwin is a merchant in that city.

It is customary in the larger union high school districts to have a gentlemen's agreement that no two representatives on the board be from the same district, thus giving representation to at least five of the districts comprising any high school district.

Such, however, is not the case in the Grossmont Union High School District, and until such time as an agreement of this nature is entered into the annual school election comes a free for all, sometimes with bitter controversies entering the campaign.

Lemon Grove has practically as many students in the high school as does El Cajon, which has two members on the board. Lakeside has one and La Mesa has two.

With the construction of a new high school so close to Lemon Grove, it is no more than right that this district should have representation on the board, and if either of the two gentlemen from La Mesa could see the light, one of them would withdraw in favor of the lady from Lemon Grove. The election will be held on Friday, May 19.

Hi, Neighbor

by Mae Rex Graham

Our hearts have doors that open with ease
By very, little keys;
And don't forget that two are these:
I thank you, sir, and, if you please.

Much over 50 years ago, when about in the first grade, I learned that little rhyme from a very charming young teacher, who was trying to instill courtesy into little children, in a way that they would remember. And I never did forget the little poem.

Judging by the well-mannered children who come into my office each week, bringing copy from the schools, for School News in the Review, I am sure the teachers of today (and parents, too) are teaching courtesy.

How fine it would be if adults, especially in the business world, could remember their childhood lessons in courtesy. It is just as easy to give a customer or inquirer a pleasant word and a smile as it is to snap them off with a retort that chills one's soul.

It takes some very attractive inducements to get customers into a store where they are not given a pleasant greeting. I will admit it is not always easy to smile when some old sour puss comes in with chips on both shoulders, but I have seen nary a smile and happy greeting that wouldn't knock those chips for a loop.

I got a big kick out of the sign in Dad Beebe's Firestone Store window—IF YOU CAN'T STOP, SMILE AS YOU PASS BY. Sometimes I fool him—I stop and smile at him, too.

There are a lot of nice places here in the Grove, in which to stop. Walter's Jewelry Store for instance. Even if you aren't spending much right now, it's fun to go in and see the carefully chosen stock of jewelry, silverware, etc.—innumerable things that you'd just love to give to give to some dear one as a gift.

And as for weddings and showers, oh la la, happy the bride a Walter's gift comes to.

And it's only a step or two to the Gift Shop where you can choose greeting cards from one of the finest collections assembled. They have some lovely gifts there too!

No need of going down to the city to find choice things—Some of these fine merchants of ours might get the idea of moving down to the city so you would come and trade with them.

Hope you Good Neighbors are reading the School News in the Review. Certainly the three school faculties are doing a fine job and making the most of the short time they have for classes.

Do you know that most of the school children here (who have not gone to school elsewhere) do not know what it means to go to school a full day. Our school hours were from 9 to 4 p. m. and we did not have the variety of subjects taught now.

It is a pity that the State Senate did not pass the proposed tobacco tax bill to provide more funds for our schools. Too many of the Solons in the richer counties do not realize, or won't open their eyes, to the school needs of the less fortunate counties.

For the present about all that folks here can do about it is to support the Parent-Teacher Association, whether they have children or not. The PTA is providing equipment that should be bought with tax money, besides giving moral and financial support to many school projects that could not be carried on without its aid.

Our boys and girls of today must have the very best there is in education to train them for the big problems of America in the near future.

LEARN TO SQUARE DANCE
The Catholic War Veterans will sponsor a class in Square Dancing with instructor caller and lively music every Friday night from 8 to 11 at the Mission Rancho Auditorium. Every one is invited.

Business Women Hold Installation

To guide the destiny of the Lemon Grove Business Women's League for the next year, Mrs. E. A. McGuire was installed as the second president of the group, in an elaborate ceremony at Casper's Ranch Club on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. I. B. Burkett also inducted Mrs. Douglas Cook, vice-president; Mrs. Bruno Leoncio, secretary; Mrs. Wally Toomire, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Arthur Chappelle treasurer.

As a memento of the high esteem of the members, and as a symbol of the leadership given the club for the past two years, Mrs. Burton Snyder was presented a pin shaped like a miniature lemon bearing the initials of the league and with miniature gavel attached.

Mrs. Snyder led the group through a period of organization and outstanding community service. She appointed her chairman.

Couple Observes 50th Anniversary

Tuesday was a momentous occasion for Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Radford, 2203 Berry street, for it was 50 years ago that day that Miss Eda Elmira Stanton became the bride of William R. Radford, at her home in Edwardsville, Okla. "Rad" had just returned from a long cattle drive up into Kansas.

They lived in Butler, Okla., until 1912 when they moved to

MR. AND MRS. W. R. RADFORD

Texas where they operated a ranch until 1920. From Texas they moved to Buckeye, Arizona. Distant horizons were alluring to Rad and Eda and in July 1943, they heard the call of God's Country in California and came to San Diego, then to Lemon Grove.

Rad says "I was cowman, freighter, rancher and builder, but like this job of pushing the California sun around the best." "When we married 50 years ago," continued Rad, "Edie and I

It Could, and Might, Happen Here

Fire losses for one year could amount to considerable in Lemon Grove. Below we print a report of the Seguin, Texas, fire chief for the year 1949. Seguin is a town comparable to Lemon Grove, but is located in a country that has more rainfall, therefore is better situated in that respect than we are.

The report, as published in the Seguin Gazette-Bulletin:

Seguin's fire losses for 1949 amounted to $12,137.61, according to Fire Chief Walter Pape's annual report which was released Monday.

Most of the loss—$8,174.60—was caused by the fire at Economy Furniture Company's warehouse near the depot, according to the report.

In addition to the $12,137.61, Seguin was charged with $9,102.19 on the 1945 cotton compress fire. The total of insured losses boosted the 1949 figure above 24 percent of premiums paid.

The chief's report carried a correction on the 1948 report. Pape's 1948 report said Seguin was charged with $18,960.36 on the compress fire. However, the State Fire Commission corrected that figure and gave Seguin a credit of $10,776.78. The credit dropped Seguin's losses to $15,283.64.

During the year, the department traveled 536 miles to answer 105 alarms. Firemen laid

Postoffice to Close an Hour Earlier Saturday

Affective Saturday the local postoffice windows will close at 12 o'clock instead of 1, under the new economy order just issued by the department.

Inasmuch as Lemon Grove does not have two-a-day delivery of mail, the office here is not otherwise affected by the new order.

Patrons should make note of the new Saturday closing and try to get their postal transactions completed before noon.

WESTERN DANCE SATURDAY

The VFW Post 2028 is sponsoring another of their popular Western dances at the hall Saturday evening. The Western Chuck Wagon Riders will furnish the music and have good vocalists for entertainment. There will be a door prize and refreshments. An invitation is extended to all.

BUILD NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Davenport have moved into their new home at 2075 Noble street, Hillside Manor. Built with stucco finish, the house is California type with two bedrooms.

At the Lemon Grove Elementary School, Mrs. Evelyn Lauritzen announces that open house will be held on Tuesday evening, April 25, for all grades of the morning session and the fourth and fifth grades. On Tuesday evening, April 27, the afternoon sessions will be host to all parents and other interested persons; this will also include the sixth grades.

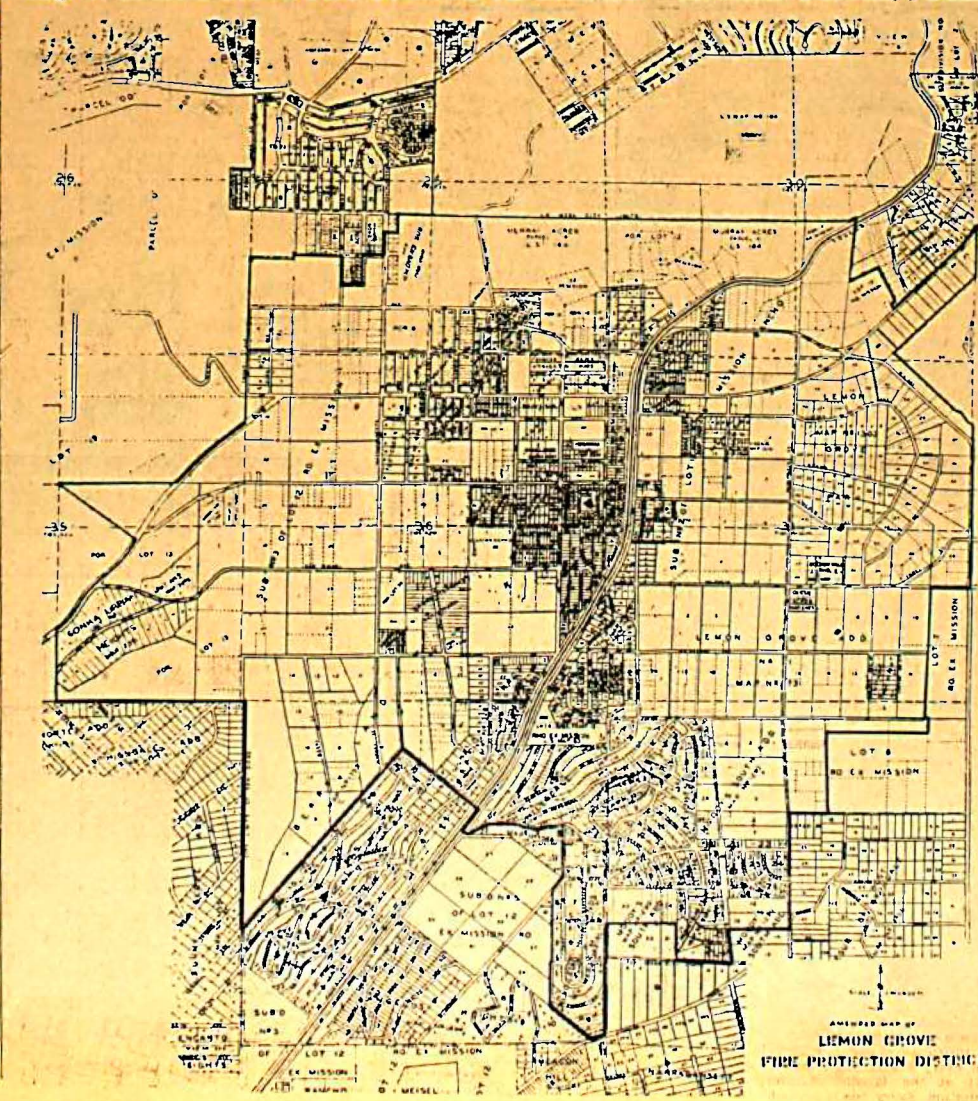

S. K. Soller states that open house by Junior High will be on Wednesday evening, April 26.

At all schools, the hours for the evening observance of Public Schools week will be from 7 until 9 at Lemon Grove.

CUT SALES TAXES NOW

Every time Mr. and Mrs. Consumer turn around today they are still paying a tax on the necessities of life levied to raise revenue during the war.

Such essentials as women's handbags and cosmetics, baby powder, transportation, and long distance telephone calls still take their toll for Uncle Sam years after the war's end. And Mr. Truman and his followers in Congress are holding the bag.

Republicans pushed through Congress in 1947 the only tax reduction the people have had since the New Deal started on its spending tactics 18 years ago. The Republican tax bill took off of the tax rolls 7,400,000 persons in the lower income tax brackets. And at the current session they have been insisting upon either a sharp cut or the complete elimination of sales taxes.

But the Democrats say no. They want to keep on spending. The Republican motion was voted down in the House Ways and Means Committee, by a straight party vote—meaning that 10 Republicans voted to cut the excise taxes at once; 15 Democrats voted for delay.

In the meantime, employment is decreased because millions of people delay buying until they can save 10 to 25 percent, of the cost of articles that goes into taxes. Seldom has a Congress of the United States been so leaderless and so unresponsive to the demands of the people.

DEPRESSION AHEAD

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Montgomery Ward and Co. and of United States Gypsum Company, made quite a stir in the financial pages of metropolitan newspapers when he announced that in his opinion the country is on the brink of a major depression.

Whether Avery qualifies as an economic prophet remains to be seen. His fears apparently spring from his conviction that the Nation has failed to learn from the experience of the last depression.

Depressions just don't happen. They are an adjustment of economic conditions that have gotten out of hand. As one financial writer warns, "the way to avoid depression is to sit on the bulge during the boom." We didn't sit on the bulge during the boom of the late Twenties. Instead, we rode an inflated stock market, buying values that didn't exist, until the economy collapsed.

Today, the stock market cannot be considered over-inflated. But most other economic factors are: prices, wages, profits, taxes. In its zeal to guard depression, the Government has shielded at any prospect of price adjustment or mild recession and kept the inflation fires banked higher and higher.

Consequently, in spite of high prosperity, we have a Federal budget deficit. Today, the Government's mushrooming commitments for loans and loan guarantees exceed 26 billion dollars, over 60 percent, of the total of all loans outstanding on the books of all the country's commercial banks! We pile up prodigious farm surpluses that nobody wants and waste our substance to pay for them.

Once more, we've failed to "sit on the bulge." Will our investment with public funds in values that don't exist have the same disastrous result as the private speculation craze that caused the crash? Mr. Avery thinks so.

TOO IMPORTANT TO FUMBLE

Despite all the bitter charge and counter-charge, the rapid maneuvering for political advantage and the personal denunciations, the fact remains that Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin has had some extremely serious things to say about the conduct of the American State Department.

Thus the news that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts, proposes to take the entire matter out of the hands of a politics-laden congressional committee and turn it over to an impartial commission, half Democrats, half Republicans; half from government, half from business—comes as a refreshing suggestion.

The safety of our Nation—and its reputation for patriotic and moral integrity—is far too important to permit the handling of McCarthy's charges by a political group possibly more intent on serving party interest than the public welfare. Nor should the matter be fumbled in any way and finally dropped.

The public has a right to know that the case is handled properly. A commission such as suggested by Senator Lodge would appear to be the logical agency to undertake the task.

TWO DEMOCRATS DISAGREE

Senator Byrd of Virginia says President Truman's fair deal program would "commit us irrevocably to a socialistic state from which there can be no retreat." He said, in a speech last week.

"If he says he is against socialism, why is he advocating the pressurizing of Congress to adopt socialized medicine?"

"Why is he advocating the Brannan Plan, which inevitably means socialized agriculture?"

"Why is he advocating another extension of socialized housing?"

"Why is he constantly advocating an extension of the number of those who receive government benefits?"

Although "deficit spending and socialism are twin evils," the President wants to spend eight billion dollars more beginning July 1 than was spent in 1948, the last year the budget was balanced, said Byrd, a long-time advocate of more economy in Government.

Our own Congressman McKinnon says we are not headed for Socialism. Every move of the administration is a forward step for the benefit of the people, according to him. It is only the disgruntled Democrats and reactionary Republicans who oppose the welfare state. McKinnon and other administration support apparently would have the government support all of us in a Utopia beyond the fondest dreams of mankind.

McKinnon and others of like mind better get down to earth, and face things as they really are.

COMMUNISM AND THE FARMER

The discovery and conviction of disloyal persons working in the government of the United States has shocked the American people. The names of Alger Hiss and Judith Coplon have taken their place alongside that of Benedict Arnold.

Sending these two people to prison will serve its good ends, however, only if it awakens Americans finally to the dangers of Communist penetration into every segment of our lives. And no place have they been more active than in agriculture. Farmers have long been a familiar target for (a) Communist infiltration, and (b) liquidation in other countries where Communists have seized control.

As long ago as 1920, the Communist leader Lenin wrote to his "comrades" in New York urging a survey of revolutionary prospects, and inquiring: Have you no farmers in America?

And in 1923, Moscow sent $100,000 to this country to aid in the organization of a farmer-labor party.

Also, the farmer was the first object of Communist mass-murders in Russia because they would not bow their necks.

In the United States today every radical organization supports the Brannan plan.

Sparks

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT JAMES DORAIS

Californians, particularly Southern Californians, who would be directly and adversely affected find it hard to understand why the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation's proposed Central Arizona Project should have received such favorable consideration in Congress.

The Project, which would divert Colorado River water which Southern California communities desperately need and to which they believe they are legally entitled, would cost at least 700 million dollars. It would use the water to irrigate 725,000 acres of central Arizona farm land at a cost of $1750 per acre. The land, when irrigated, would be worth no more than $300 per acre, and would be used to swell the production of crops which already are in surplus supply.

Interest charges alone on the Project are estimated at more than the assessed valuation of all the land in Arizona. Taxpayers of all the States, including California, from whose people the water would be withheld, would put up the money to build this engineering monument to utter futility.

How can Congress even consider appropriating money for such a hare-brained proposal?

Well, Congress is used to throwing the public's money around on projects of doubtful worth. The Central Arizona Project may be conspicuous in the pork barrel because of its size, but it is not unique.

This year, the Congressional hopper abounds with pork barrel projects, many of them introduced by the most ardent of economy-minded Congressmen. Undoubtedly most will be approved, for they all mean Federal money spent in home districts, and the folks at home who benefit seldom think about the money being spent in other sections of the country in similar projects.

It would be hard to conceive, for example, of anyone in California being particularly interested in the 125 fishermen and their families who live in a remote section on Lake Superior called Grand Marais Harbor.

Congress has been asked to spend $398,000 to complete work on two 3000-foot piers, a dredged harbor channel and a 6000-foot dike previously authorized for their benefit. Total cost of the project will be $1,221,437, or nearly $10,000 per family, and the Government's maintenance cost after its completion will be $18,000 per year.

Economic justification would be just as hard to find for any number of other items in the pork barrel. The Central Arizona Project has had lots of publicity because such a huge amount of money is involved and because it takes directly from one area to give to another.

But all the pork barrel projects indirectly, do just that. They win cynical approval through a process of Congressional horse-trading. In the case of the Central Arizona Project, California is in danger of being traded right down the Colorado River.

LITTLE BROWN CRANE

The Little Brown Crane, Grus Canadensis.

We helped one pair of chicks out of their eggs on June 21, and as soon as they became dry they were handsome sturdy little fellows, bails of golden-brown down.

The strong legs were slatey red, rather short in proportion to the bird, and in great contrast to the long legs of the parents. The knees are thick and the legs throughout flesh-like.

The reddish color in the legs and bill of the newly hatched chick, no doubt, was due to the fact that the blood could be seen through the transparent covering. The knee bones were visibly protruding, the covering had lost its reddish tinge and become of a shiny, slatey color. During the first day the legs of the little cranes were large and soft, but by the next morning they had shrunk and hardened considerably. The young showed interest in food shortly after hatching, but they would not pick up boiled egg yolk themselves until a tapping noise was made with the fingers on the floor, whereupon they at once began to eat. Their high-pitched "peep" had a gurgle in it, a miniature of the rolling "r-r-r" in the trumpet note of the adult.

The nest is easy to locate if the birds are seen to leave the vicinity, but they often sneak off, heads down, when the intruder is still some distance away. The male is usually on guard and warns the female with a loud rolling trumpet note as he departs. We found this crane the noisiest bird on the tundra, surpassing even the Loons, and its call could be heard at any hour of the day or of the twilight night. It seemed as if every time one moved it called. The male and female share in the duties of incubation, changing places often, and at such times each bird calls the one as it approaches the nest, and the other as it departs. The nest-changing call is different from the regular notes and gives the natives a clue to the location of the nests, of which they are quick to take advantage, for the eggs as well as the birds themselves are considered the finest delicacies of Eskimo home life. One native brought in six fine fresh eggs for which he refused a considerable sum, preferring to serve them to his family, as they are supposed to render those who eat them immune from disease.

It was recently shown that the Little Brown Crane of the north is but subspecifically distinct from the Sandhill Crane of the Florida Prairies and the Cuban Crane of the West Indies. This being so, this magnificent wading bird, including its various forms, is in the breeding season one of the most widely distributed birds occurring on the North American continent. Its resounding, nest changing call is echoed from the beautiful palm bordered marshes of the tropics to the eternal, ice-bound islands of the Arctic sea. Thus it covers the full range of North American climatic conditions, and it is one of our three or four feathered examples of such highly developed adaptations. Wherever this bird occurs it lends a charm to the wild solitudes that it frequents, and therefore I was greatly pleased to learn from the Eskimos there that in recent years its ranks are increasing, due, no doubt, to more considerate treatment in its southern winter haunts.

Continuing our journey across the Magak flats on Little Brown Crane Day, we found three more Crane's nests, all with eggs well incubated. I could have discovered 10 nests a day in this region had I cared to put forth the effort. We went from pond to pond by short portages; and in one narrow place on a large lake we startled an Emperor Goose from its nest on a small island. This, the most beautiful of our North American geese, passed very close to us, so that we were privileged to admire its white head and soft blue gray color as it flew silently away. There were five large white eggs nestled in the gray down of the nest, and in spite of the rain they were dry and warm. A short distance beyond, on a little point jutting into the lake, we found a second nest.

We reached the head of a small slough which we followed until it became a narrow river meandering across the flats, and we found the region of perfect haven for the many wild-fowl. Ducks were everywhere, flying about in scolding protest, courting or feeding on the many sheets of water. There were American Scaups, three species of Eiders, the Spectacled, the Steller, and the Pacific; as well as Pintails, American Scooters, and an occasional Mallard or Baldpate, while the Old Squaw was perhaps the most numerous of all. Gulls of three species—Glaucous, Short-billed, and Sabine likewise were numerous.

We also saw many nests of the Arctic Tern. Pomerine Jaegers were the most plentiful of the marauders, but the Long-tailed and Parasitic Jaegers were not uncommon. Three species of Geese—Emperor, Cackling and White-fronted—winged about in flocks or devoted pairs, adding their more resonant notes to the babel of wild tongues, while numerous flocks of Black Bryants were still passing Northward. Of the feathered swarm that circled above the strange interlopers that the birds doubtless regarded us, the Loons flew highest and were the only birds that were silent, for they talk to one another, ignoring mere man. Interesting shore-birds protested our invasion, Pacific Godwits, Black-bellied Plovers, Black Turnstones, and others, but they were not nearly so plentiful as at Hooper Bay. This was primarily the region of the large waterfowl.

In the grass six feet from a small pond, and well concealed, was my first nest of the American Scaup. There were 10 eggs in the dark, downed nest, and they were all fresh. An interesting nest with four eggs of the Pacific Godwit was observed near by, defended with the utmost vigor by both parents.

It was evening when we reached the Southern shore of Igliak Bay, here two miles wide, and the surface of the water was rough from the influence of a part of the Bering Sea swell. The mountains loomed up large and formidable, while Cape Ramonoff seemingly near at hand, looked steep and rugged.

SALT CAUSES AVOCADO LEAF BURN

Excessive leaf burn and premature leaf drop were common evidence of salt damage during the winter and early spring, according to Farm Advisor, Joe Conny of the Agricultural Extension Service. Lack of winter rainfall, conservative use of irrigation water are the main factors held responsible. In general water quality has been poorer, too.

Liberal use of irrigation water, occasional deep, leaching type of irrigation, will help. Irrigating before the available soil moisture is low, will also help a little. But only heavy winter rainfall can correct or alleviate the situation.

The common leaf burn is due to a gradual accumulation of chloride salt in the leaf tip during the growing season. Dry, windy weather in the fall months often aggravate the speed and severity of burning. In extreme cases, trees completely defoliate, green shoots die back, and new growth during February and March may show burning. Sodium, in addition to chloride, seems involved in several cases this year, adds Conny. The avocado has long been recognized as sensitive to salt. In the short history of avocado growing here, there has never been a series of winters with no leaching rainfalls such as have just been experienced. This is a matter for real investigation, states Conny, for apparently we have serious salt damage while the soils are still non-saline as judged by ordinary standards.

NEW VACCINE NO CURE-ALL

Considerable comment has followed the distribution of another type of live virus vaccine for use against Newcastle disease, reports Farm Advisor, R. H. Adolph. It is an intranasal live virus PE vaccine. Like all products it has limitations—it is no cure-all. The manufacturers recommend it only for the growing birds and to protect broilers and fryers.

This strain of vaccine has been used intranasally with some degree of success on day-chicks and in chicks and turkeys older than that. The average mortality for a large number of birds vaccinated ranged about 2 percent. Its use on laying birds might cause a drop in production.

Dr. A. S. Rosenwald, poultry pathologist of the University Agricultural Extension Service, states that the product may be useful for temporary protection for meat birds. However if it is being used for the protection of chicks to go into the laying flocks be sure that those chicks are vaccinated again with regular web-stick live virus vaccine before they come into production. If this is done, the bird should have satisfactory immunity throughout its life.

Tests of the newer type vaccine are being conducted by the College of Agriculture and more information will be available later.

LIVESTOCK FIELD DAY

Southern California Livestock men are having a Field Day at Chino High School, Wednesday, April 26 at 10 a. m. Farm Advisor, F. W. Dorman states this event is sponsored by the Animal Husbandry Division and the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture.

The morning session will be taken up with discussions of Bloat, Trace Minerals, Economy of Meat Production and Breeding Efficiency. Research men from the University of California will be the speakers.

Dorman says the afternoon will be spent visiting beef, dairy, hog and horse ranches in that area. It is a program that should interest all San Diego County livestock producers.

DARK ALFALFA NEEDS WATER

Alfalfa plants that turn dark green and lose their lush appearance probably need more water. Farm Advisor F. W. Dorman says an actual examination of the soil-moisture conditions should determine the need for irrigation.

Alfalfa irrigation depends a great deal on the grower's program and how much water is available. The most common practice on deep loam soil is to irrigate once per cutting, usually as soon as the hay crop has been removed. Lighter soils may need two or more irrigations cutting.

There is no point Dorman says in using more water than the soil can hold in the first four to six feet. Too much water only takes all the nourishment out of the soil and raises the water table. One inch of water will wet clay soil four to five inches deep, a loam soil six to ten inches and a sandy soil 12 inches or more.

FREEZE COOKED TURKEY IN PARTS

Save space in your freezer by storing the larger turkey parts, suggests Home Advisor, Marguerite Wurtsbaugh. When the larger turkeys are cheaper than the smaller ones, Mrs. Wurtsbaugh says there is also a substantial saving in money.

Turkey can go into the freezer cooked or uncooked. To freeze a roasted bird, cool it quickly and thoroughly. Then cut it into handy sections such as drumstick and thigh, wings, and breast meat. Package each piece separately for use later as roasts. Strip the remaining meat from the carcass and package it together for sandwiches, salads, or casseroles.

Break the carcass into small pieces and let it simmer with a little salt for one to two hours. Cool quickly, skin and freeze the liquid for soup stock.

Package the dressing in separate containers with one package for each roast.

Full directions for packaging and freezing cooked, and uncooked turkey, parts are contained in a new leaflet of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service. Mrs. Wurtsbaugh says copies of this bulletin are available free at the local office, Rm. 404, U. S. Customs Building, San Diego.

FEWER ANIMALS GO EAST

More and More livestock move west to be prepared for the dinner table. Actually, slaughtering doubled in the 11 western-most states and Texas for the period 1925 to 1948, reaching 6 billion pounds in the latter year.

While slaughtering doubled, meat animal production in the area moved up one-third. Actually, the total animal population has changed little, but the average animal reaches a heavier weight.

Western livestock producers still ship many of their animals east but this movement is dwindling and the tide of shipments is changing to the west. West coast packer buyers go farther east to secure the livestock they need. About half of the slaughter in the west is accounted for by packers in California, Oregon and Washington.

Agricultural economists of the University of California Agricultural Extension Service point out that of the several factors accounting for this shift in slaughtering, certainly the increase in human population is the most important. The population of the area has risen almost two-thirds since 1925, while the other 36 states were gaining only one-fifth.

INSTITUTE ON GOVERNMENT

More than 50 experts on various phases of governmental activity, drawn from throughout the state, will lead the discussion sessions of San Diego State College's second annual Institute on Government Friday and Saturday in Balboa Park.

With the municipal, county, state and federal employees' associations in this area assisting in the sponsorship, the Institute will begin with a general session at 1 Friday afternoon in the park Conference building. Edmund T. Price, president of Solar Aircraft Co., will address the conference. After which a series of eight specialized panel discussions will be available for the choice of participants.

A dinner session will be held at 6 Friday evening in the House of Hospitality, with Dr. Clarence Dykstra, provost of the University of California at Los Angeles, speaking on "The High Calling of Government Service." He is former president of the University of Wisconsin, city manager of Cincinnati and first national director of selective service.

The Institute will conclude with a Saturday morning session at the Conference building. O. W. Campbell, new San Diego city manager, will address the general meeting, after which eight more panel sessions will be scheduled. The Institute is open to the public for a registration fee of $1.50, not including the dinner.

Dr. J. O. McClintic, chairman, said that the institute is designed to give the public a better understanding of governmental problems and functions, and to give public employees a full understanding of their responsibilities.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

Back in 1946 while America was in the throes of settling its war-jangled nerves, a political scandal broke in Kansas City, Missouri, which in more ordinary times would have shocked the senses of every decent person in the Nation, but it didn't—the horrors of war must have been too fresh in mind for people to get too upset over political skulduggery.

By the end of next month, however, whoever brazenly marched in and stole the evidence of election fraud from the election commissioners in Kansas City will be safe from the law, the statute of limitations will have run out.

Until May 28, 1950, there still is a possibility that action will be taken, that the mystery surrounding one of the most sordid chapters in American politics will be cleared away.

The Kansas City Primary Election case went somewhat as follows: The Pendergast machine, down but not out after boss Tom was sent to Federal prison, was attempting a comeback and backing Enos A. Axtell, Democratic candidate for Congress. President Truman also had a finger in the local scene and was plumping away for Axtell against the incumbent Roger C. Slaughter.

After the votes were counted, making Axtell the winner, a County Grand Jury investigating charges of fraud in the election found countless evidences of illegal activity and consequently returned indictments against 71 people involved. But the wheels of justice weren't to move too far. Someone stole the evidence—and it has never been recovered, although the Department of Justice took a late hand in proceedings and moved about somewhat.

Why didn't the Kansas City or Missouri forces of law and order clear up the case? Perhaps it might have been embarrassing to the wrong people. Why the Justice Department didn't pursue the case with the vigor it displayed in cracking down on most cases is a question for which there can never be a satisfactory answer.

The dogged fight by Administration forces in Congress to stop any thoroughgoing investigation of the matter is another deplorable incident. It is one, too, extremely difficult to understand so long as no one has anything to hide.

Missouri may like its politics on the basis of anything goes, but when those politics involve the Congress of the United States then the rest of the Nation has a vital interest in proceedings—and most people in this country don't like dirty politics.

It should be interesting to see if there is any last ditch effort to be made to straighten out the Missouri mess.

Plans are rapidly progressing for the 1950 May Day at Lemon Grove School. Joyce Herbert has been elected by her fellow students as Queen of the May, and the following sixth grade girls will serve as attendants in her court:

From Mrs. Pauline Miller's class: Gloria Alvarez, Sharon Hodges, Sylvia Barr, Jackleen Coppenger, Joan Carbajal, Gordon Whalen, Margaret Finch, Betty Scawinsky, Janet Henderson, Yvonne Ruzich, Esther Stevenson, Barbara Leone, Martha McGuire, Delores Rubalcaba.

From Mrs. Loy Holmquist's class: Shirley Quist, Beatrice Prieto, Karen Torgerson, Patricia Knapp, Eva Duncan, Machailina Paszkiewicz, Betty Brown, Charlotte Norris, Kristin Johnson, Marrow Barrows, Karen Dawson, Linda Leach and Carolyn Smith. Dances and songs are being practiced daily by all grades in preparation for the May Day celebration. Bright gay costumes are being made for the colorful program which will be presented to the public on May 1 at 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. at the Lemon Grove School in front of the Administration Building on School Lane.

Monterey Heights School

The following students from the sixth grade class of Clarence Allen, Monterey Heights School, all enjoyed interesting excursions during the past weekend.

David Hendrick visited in Ensenada, Mexico. Arvis Reed enjoyed fishing off the Coronado Islands in the Pacific. Ronald Tehan attended the Clyde Beatty Circus in San Diego. Arthur Cornelius, Sally Stevens, Mary Ellen Dackham and Barbara Tucker all went swimming in the San Diego Municipal Pool. Jean Rautrang visited the Fine Arts Gallery and the Museum of Natural History in Balboa Park. Diana Smith picnicked at Eucalyptus Park. Lois Montrose joined a group of hikers to Lindo Park for bird study and Lavanne Vestal journeyed to Borrego Springs.

Mrs. Dorothy Babington's fifth grade is busily working on a puppet show which will be presented at Open House during Public Schools Week. The Junior Audubon Club in the class plans on hiking soon to Rosemarie Pearl's home to observe some quail.

Lemon Grove Elementary School

About 30 parents of children in the Lemon Grove School District met in the Lemon Grove School cafeteria last Tuesday evening, and agreed to help in the program producing devices to be used in reading readiness programs next fall.

Verne Donohue of the County Guidance Department, explained the various models which he displayed and asked for volunteers from the parent group to make similar items. The lumber, paint, and other materials needed for the projects have been provided by the school and pieces of lumber have already been cut to size.

Next Monday, the group will again meet and complete the projects. All parents interested in this work are welcome to attend this meeting.

Teachers who are serving on this committee are Mrs. Grace Burks, Lemon Grove School, chairman; Mrs. Lucile Hunt, Vista La Mesa School, and Mrs. Madge Lowery, Monterey Heights School.

The book report contest, being sponsored by the Student Council of the Elementary School, will end this week, with the prize-winning reports on display for parents when they visit the school during Public Schools Week.

There are two divisions in the contest: junior division for all pupils in grades two, three and four; and senior division for pupils in grades five and six. Prize ribbons for first, second and third place will be awarded in each division. Members of the judging committee will be members of the Student Council.

These reports may be of any type other than the usual written report. Several fine entries have already been submitted. Pupils still working on reports to be completed this week will face stiff competition.

The Student Council members of the Lemon Grove Elementary School have every reason to be proud of their endeavor this year. Since the short time they have been organized, the crosswalk problem has been successfully solved by them, with the following new regulations set up: Those children living north of Broadway and east of Imperial will cross Broadway east of the railroad tracks and School Safety Patrols will be there to help them. The former regulations were unsatisfactory, because children were required to cross westward on Imperial and Main before they could cross Broadway. The council appealed to Officer Coates, who in turn conferred with traffic headquarters representatives, with the excellent results given above.

The council also suggested that all parents purchase locks for bicycles which are parked at the school during the day.

Vista La Mesa School

The morning kindergarten class taught by Mrs. Larson, of Vista La Mesa, welcomed three new pupils to the class. Ann Shawky is a transfer from the Lemon Avenue School in La Mesa. Avis Bates comes from Central School in San Diego and Sandra Howard is from San Ysidro.

The class is sorry to lose Richard Hoy, who is leaving the district with his mother and small brother for Honolulu today, Thursday. Richard says they plan to be gone for at least two years.

Mrs. Berdel's p. m. kindergarten will miss Russell Werner, Jr., who has transferred from Vista La Mesa to his new school at Rapid City, South Dakota.

Basketball Playoffs Results

On Thursday and Friday the girls of the Lemon Grove Junior High held playoffs in basketball in the middle area outdoor courts. Coaches for the many teams which participated in the playoff games were Miss Francis Read, Barney Davis, Mel Frailey and Fabian Egan.

In the eighth grade, first place was taken by Captain Donna Mae Barber and her teammates, Rosa Lee Seward, Donald Beebe, Shirley Westmoreland and Suzanne Holahan. Second place went to Captain Catherine Bradshaw, with Anna Castellano, Joan Lewis, Ruth Finnerty, Carol Covert, Marjorie Fick, and Jane Fisher. Third place honors were taken by Captain Diane Laisrey, with Bernadette Medina, Cecilia Lyons, Diane Caswell, Connie Hunt and Marilyn Marriot.

Third place was copied by Captain Barbara Balch, and team members, Kay Kish, Carol Skarda, Norma Frye and Patricia Pfister.

During this week the boys of the seventh and eighth grades will hold their spring track meet. Results will be announced next week.

Business Women Hold Installation

of projects with good judgment and was rewarded with cooperation of the members which meant success in every undertaking.

Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls were sponsored, the PTA was assisted in its activities, entertainment secured for Powwow, supported Community Chest, March of Dimes, and Red Cross, encouraged the growth of Co-ordinating Council, and helped on the annual Community Christmas parties. Needy were provided with food and clothing. In general, the League has endeavored to create good will and cooperation in the community.

Perhaps the project which has the most visible effect is the beautification of the railroad right of way and its maintenance.

Following installation, a program arranged by Mrs. Douglas Cook, and announced by Mrs. Wally Toomire, was presented.

Wally Toomire led the singing, and Art Chappelle delighted the group with accordion selections. Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Toomire sang popular songs. Dr. Brassington and Wally Toomire did a comedy stunt. Mrs. Snyder directed an impromptu one act pantomime. A men's quintet, Art Chappelle, Forrest Baxter, Al Huebsch, Wally Toomire and Douglas Cook gave vaudeville songs, accompanied by Mrs. Toomire.

The Toomire orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

Colored Photos at Gift Shop

Following her marriage, Mrs. Alice M. Hansen, 7810 Canton drive, retired her professional work as a biochemist and took up photography as a hobby. Mrs. Hansen is secretary-treasurer of the La Mesa Camera Club. She has exhibited prints in the La Jolla Art Institute, the Photographic Arts Building, Balboa Park and several salons in the East.

The Greeting Shop at 7775 Broadway has a display of lovely hand colored photographs of Southern California scenes taken and oil colored by Alice Hansen.

Speeding on U. S. streets and highways last year killed 10,000 men, women and children.

Local Teacher Tells of Interesting Places on 1900 Mile Trip

Continuing Mrs. Ovella Mason's story of the Easter vacation trip made by Mr. and Mrs. Mason:

We visited Jerome, one of America's unique mining towns, perched high on the mountain side, 2000 feet above Clarkdale. It is a very busy old town with ramshackled houses built right on the street which wind up and up. The school is almost at the top. There are very few automobiles and no space for parking by the homes. There is a low level of existence here, comparable with some of our city slums. From Jerome we enjoyed a 30 mile view of the San Francisco Peaks, and a panorama of Oak Creek Canyon.

Granite Dells is an area covered by rock formations eroded by water, sand and wind. Lakes, trees, and a stream add interest to this unusual place, just before coming to Prescott.

At Phoenix, Papago State Park is an interesting reservation containing a cactus garden, with many unusual varieties, from the size and shape of pincushion balls to giant pillars. It has also weird rock formations.

The country surrounding Mesa is very productive with plenty of water for irrigation. We passed orange groves, a large date farm, vegetable farms and many acres of feed crops. The late afternoon desert air was laden with orange blossoms, reminding us of home.

Indian legends and tales of a lost gold mine gave Superstition Mountain its name. Its great bulk rears boldly above the western entrance to the famed region of Apache Trail. Arriving here at sunset we could not have timed our trip better, for an Arizona sunset in this setting was an experience never to be forgotten. Like a universe exploding, the brilliance cannot be described. We drove a few miles on gravelled road that leads to the Lost Dutchman Mine. Squaw Cactus fill this area, adding to its beauty.

Between Phoenix and Chandler there are beautiful farm homes with prosperous farm lands, all due to the ever present irrigation ditches along the road.

After crossing the Gila River at the Van Ki Indian Reservation we observed two Indian villages, Sacaton and Pima. The Pima Indian Agency is located at Pima. These Indians have small farms, live in small adobe huts, with thatched roofs, a few with windows. We picked out a typical one to take pictures and get a close view. It had a dirt floor, which was ground level. It was filled with much junk. The Indian squaw dressed in a dirty apron, was hardly visible, as she washed cheap dishes at an old junk yard sink which was supported by stilts. Water is obtained from wells or hauled in from the Gila River. The fusion of modern and old was also seen in an old washing machine wringer.

Other tribes in this territory are the Apache and Papago. At Casa Grande National Monument the remains of a four-story watch tower apartment house surmount the ruins of a large walled village that was built 6000 years ago by a vanished race, called Hohokam. Hohokam is a modern term used by the modern Pima Indians, and means the Ancient Ones. The culture of the Hohokam was distinguished by several features of which the most important are:

1. They lived in single room houses of wattle and daub construction. The houses were similar in appearance to the modern Pima and Papago homes, with floors excavated a little below ground level.
2. Crops of maize (corn) beans, pumpkin and probably cotton.
3. Proficient in carving shell and stone.
4. The common decorated pottery was a buff color with designs applied with red paint.

About 700 A. D. the Hohokam started digging large irrigation canals. These were lengthened through the years until some reached 20 to 25 miles. These canals represent the greatest achievements, in an economic sense, of the Hohokam. Some of these canals are incorporated in the present canal system used today.

During the 12th century an enemy appeared indicated by the high walls around the villages, creating defensive sights, called compounds. At the beginning of the 14th century an alien group of Indians, the Salada Indians, came out of the mountains of the north and moved in with these desert dwellers. The Salada Indians had much in common with the Hohokam but they built houses three or four stories high usually on a hill, ridge or cave for protection.

The Casa Grande was a Salada building. Its thick walls of un-fired adobe were constructed by a people accustomed to building structures of more than one story, which the Hohokems were not. The material used was an adobe of high lime content which is found several feet beneath the surface of the desert. In addition to its use as a watch tower, the Casa Grande served as an apartment house. Its eleven rooms probably accommodated as many families. Early excavations of the Casa Grande ruin recovered ordinary cooking and storage vessels, sleeping mats, corn cobs, and fragments of textile. By 1450 both Hohokam and Salada had abandoned the Gila valley. Just why they left their villages for other regions is not known.

The museum here is one of the best, as it displays artifacts from the Casa Grande group and other ruins of the vicinity. Some of the most interesting exhibits were:

A model of a pit house, earliest home built by the Hohokam in the river bottom, perhaps 1000 years ago.
Basketry used in basket weaving; cat claw for dark color; willow for light color; bundle of cat tail sewed around this to make the bottom.
Burden basket for carrying wood, sticks.
Pottery, high type of art; plain gray for cooking.

War club, bows and arrows, fire sticks; paint, paint brushes; burial urns; remains of charred cotton cloth; jewelry—mosaics, pendants, bells of copper ore, turquoise used in most jewelry. Natural foods, Saguaro Cactus, eaten raw or boiled down, mesquite beans ground into meal.

In the Gila Bend country toward Yuma, Ocotilla is in full bloom. It is a shrub or tree in a burst of yellow blossoms, with scattered Saguaro Cactus in a desert setting. These desert blooms with the blue distant mountains made this drive inspiring.

The American Desert with its great sand dunes made us feel we were much farther away from home than we were, perhaps in the Sahara Desert. Last, but not least, the hills near Alpine were covered with wild lilac, which is an inspiration we can have every spring. Although this trip was a wonderful experience, the Masons are perfectly contented to live in Spring Valley and they think Lemon Grove and surrounding country the best in the world to settle down for life, and really live.

Art Lover
Missing Motive
Rueful Release
By Will Bernard, LL.B.

Should a Merchant
Let His Customer
Make a Foolish Purchase?

An art dealer bought a group of paintings from a famous collector and put them up for sale. One day a society woman became interested in a certain picture, believing it belonged to the special collection. But when she saw this particular painting was just part of the dealer's regular stock. After some study, the woman said: "I'll take this one. If it was good enough for that famous collector, it's good enough for me!" The dealer said nothing, and quickly wrapped up the purchase. When the woman later discovered her mistake, she tried to back out of the bargain—and a court ruled that the dealer must indeed take back the picture. The judge said that, when a customer buys something under such an obvious misunderstanding, the merchant should speak up.

May a Man Be Convicted
Of Murder—If the Motive
Is Never Found?

A stranger checked in at a motel on a side street. The next morning, the proprietor was found on the floor of his kitchen—shot to death. Soon afterward the stranger was arrested on a charge of murder. At the trial, the prosecutor produced an overwhelming mass of circumstantial evidence—all pointing to the defendant as the killer. Only one link was missing: a motive for the crime. However, the court decided that the accused man should be held guilty anyhow. The judge said that shooting somebody in cold blood is murder, even though the motive remains locked forever in the heart of the killer.

If an Injured Person
Signs a Release Too Soon,
Is He Bound By It?

A girl was knocked down by a coal truck, and suffered an injured arm. The coal company offered her $100 cash, if she would sign a release of all claims. When a doctor told the girl that her injury was "nothing serious," she decided to take the $100 and sign the release. Unfortunately, the doctor was wrong. The girl's arm soon grew much worse, and finally became permanently lame. Some months later, she filed suit against the company for additional damages. She said she had signed the release "without realizing how serious the injury was." But the court rejected her claim. The judge said that she had signed away her rights with her eyes wide open—and was therefore just out of luck.

May a Judge Preside Over
Two Trials at the Same Time?

Finding himself with a heavy calendar one morning, a judge decided upon an unusual expedient. He called two cases for trial at the same time—one in the courtroom and one in his chambers. During the proceedings, His Honor shuttled back and forth between the two places, hearing as much as he could of each trial. But when his decisions were later appealed to a higher court, both of them were thrown out. The upper court said that while the judge did undoubtedly speed things up, he didn't do justice to anybody concerned.

An insurance broker's wife was so popular because of her husband's clients that he became very jealous. Finally he filed a divorce suit on grounds of mental cruelty, accusing his wife of "flirting" with several young men. But the court flatly refused to grant a decree. The judge said: "However reprehensible such conduct may be in a married woman, it does not constitute grounds for divorce." His Honor suggested that, in a situation like this, the husband should either "subdue his wife or suffer in silence!"

WHO'S Crippled?

SUCCESS STORY OF THE MONTH

Mary Catalina Gutierrez, a young American of Mexican parentage, has her own radio hour over station KPRO at Riverside, Calif. At age 23, that in itself is something of an accomplishment, because she not only scripts the show herself, but is the show's "disc jockey" and cultivates her own sponsors.

But the truly remarkable thing about Mary Catalina Gutierrez is the fact that she has won out over a crippling handicap to become not only independent, but to contribute to the support of her mother and younger sister.

In recognition of Catalina's indomitable courage and her successful fight to make herself a self-sustaining citizen of her adopted country, the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults has awarded her the "Who's Crippled?" citation. Presentation of the award was made by the California Society for Crippled Children.

Catalina was born with a club foot complicated with other difficulties which made it impossible for her to walk until she was 8 years old. After a series of operations—so many she no longer remembers the number—she now is able to walk with only a slight limp, although she still has a deformed ankle and must wear a thick sock shoe.

Determined that her handicap should not interfere with normal living, she went through school, finishing the 12th grade at the Polytechnic High School in Riverside, and learned to dance, drive a car and walk well enough to be an usherette in a movie house.

Her high school secretarial course prepared her for her first job as stenographer in the outpatient department of Camp Hahn, near Riverside. After the closing of Camp Hahn she was secretary to a Los Angeles medical laboratory and later to two physicians.

However, her driving ambition was to go into radio work, and she temporarily left her stenographic job to go into radio at $8.00 a week, when an opportunity presented itself.

When her father died in 1944, her mother and sister needed her support and she abandoned her radio job to work for the Crippled Children's Society of Riverside County as a secretary.

Through her work with the Society, she was put in touch with the president of the local broadcasting corporation, and Catalina was given her longed-for chance. Her program over KPRO (1440 on your dial) goes over the network of the Broadcasting Corporation of America which covers Riverside and Imperial counties, although Catalina gets fan letters from as far away as Arizona. The program is called "El Eco de Mexico" (The Voice of Mexico) and is broadcast daily except Sunday from 6:00 to 6:45 a.m. Catalina does all of the selling for her program, writes her own scripts and commercials.

Next August, having cleared her greatest hurdles and having become a self-sustaining individual, Catalina Gutierrez will receive her second papers and become a full-fledged citizen of the United States.

WHY We Need Fire Protection

A. C. ANDERSON
Lemon Grove Fire Commissioner

The services to be expected from a fire department in the community:

At the present time we have only the sheriff's office to call in case of an emergency. Fire departments all over the county are called upon to handle many emergencies every day, and the same may be expected from one in our community.

A group of experienced firemen that know the streets, and the quickest route to any address with the proper equipment, may save a life. If unable to help, they will know what other agency to call.

Education in fire prevention throughout the community and in the schools is one of the main functions of any well organized fire department.

Inspection and supervision of public gatherings, such as schools, churches, and club houses; to see that first aid fire extinguishers are available, and that fire safety measures are observed.

A thorough knowledge of the district assures the prompt response to fires with the least possible loss in time.

The extinguishing of a fire without excessive damage, salvage and overhaul after the fire, to leave premises in the best possible condition, are functions of a well organized fire department.

made a pact, she was to be boss in all the little things, while I was to decide all the momentous ones. Seems like the big ones don't come up often."

"No reason why they should," small Edie retorts, "since Rad and I moved here seven years ago, there haven't been any big decisions. With a view from the Pacific to Cuyamaca and almost eternal springtime, all worries resolve into little ones."

"And there's been quite a few little ones," says Rad. "Eight of them, scattered around, all grown up now. And most of them with small ones of their own."

These devoted children had a fine television set installed in the Radfords home as their anniversary gift to mom and dad.

Because so many of the family could not be present on Tuesday, the children are honoring their parents at a Golden Wedding anniversary reception and picnic dinner at 1 o'clock at Eucalyptus Park next Sunday afternoon. All of the children and their families expect to be present.

The centerpiece will be a high tiered cake with a bride and groom on top.

The sons and their families are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin E. Radford, 2311 Perry street; Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Radford, Eddie, Eda Nell and Rollin, of Ogden, Utah; Mr. and Mrs. Owen K. Radford, Ephraim, Wash.; Mrs. and Mrs. Roy F. Radford, Colleen, Lorna Lee and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan R. Radford, all of Whittier.

The sons-in-law and daughters and families include Mr. and Mrs. D. J. (Lena) Randolph, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Furth and little Ellen Furth, (the great granddaughter) of Glendale, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. E. M. (Bessie) Brown and Stanton, of La Mesa; Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Jewel) Halleib and sons Ben and Ray Provence, of San Diego.

Other relatives present will be Mr. Radfords brother, T. B. Radford and wife, of Monrovia, and sister, Mrs. Beatrice Wands of West Los Angeles; also Mrs. Radford's sister, Mrs. Petway Conn and husband, of Azusa.

About 150 invitations have been sent out for the affair.

Open House During Public School Week

Announces that open house will be held in Thursday, April 27, from 6:30 to 7:45 p. m., followed by a P.T.A. meeting at 8. Mrs. Helen Crow, child education lecturer, will be the speaker of the evening.

On Wednesday at 1 p. m., Monterey Heights will hold a Field Day program, at which all grades will demonstrate the games, folk dances, and other physical education activities which they learned at school. Parents are invited to attend this interesting program. The Lemon Grove District Elementary Bond under the direction of Paul Cheatham, will furnish music for the occasion.

According to Ben Schei, principal of Vista La Mesa School, they will observe Public School Week with demonstrations of class activities during the week, to which the public is cordially invited. Open house will be held next Thursday evening from 7 until 9 p. m.

Classes throughout the district have prepared interesting demonstrations, and the students and teachers are looking forward to even larger audiences than were received during American Education Week last fall. All those persons in the community who are interested in the growth and development of our schools are urged to participate in the programs planned for next week.

The Masonic Lodge will present a program of musical talent made up entirely of students from the Lemon Grove District, next Tuesday evening at the school cafeteria from 7 until 9. Lewis Smith, superintendent of Grossmont High School, will speak at this gathering, which is open to the interested public.

Question—Who Has the Rabbit?

As a boost to the local 4-H Club, which is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, a rabbit was awarded as the attendance prize Monday noon.

The rabbit went to Doc Brassington, in whose charge the animal remained for 24 hours, then it was passed on to another member of the club.

The rabbit is to go the rounds of the members until the arrival of its babies, and the member who has the rabbit in his possession at that time is subject to a fine at the next meeting of the club.

It is the duty of each member during the short time the rabbit is in his possession, to clean the cage, feed the animal and deposit 50c in a tin box attached to the cage. The money goes to the 4-H Club treasury.

New Pie Crust in Local Stores

Frank Thomas and Arnold J. Johnson, former chefs who are now manufacturing a ready-made pie crust preparation in their plant at Gillespie field, report overwhelming acceptance of their new product.

Thomas, a former Alpine chef and Johnson, formerly at Comanche Bowl, are enthusiastic over the product because numerous housekeepers, who have made pies with Role, in their homes, are praising its quality, economy and delicious texture.

Because it can be kept either in a refrigerator or freezer indefinitely, "Role" presents no storage problems, Thomas and Johnson explained. Requiring no mixing or advance preparation, "Role" is simply rolled out and placed in the pie tin or dish, enough dough for two 9-inch crusts.

Practically all markets in Lemon Grove have stocked Role. Read their ad on page 4.
